You have to visit the library in person. By contrast, the enumeration books have been digitized, similar to the 1901 census, with the exception that each person's entries go through a double page. Access to the Scottish Census of 1911 The position in Scotland regarding access to the Scottish Census of 1911 differs from that of England and Wales. Official census reports from 1801 to 1931 are available on Histpop - the website of the rich Population Reports Online (if you have problems with the site, try Histpop at this secondary location). PDF files require Acrobat Reader. The payment is made by means of payment per visit which cost 25p each. Access to census reports Great Britain 1801-1966 (Your Majesty's Office of Paper and Printing, 1977) is partly available in a visit to a through time: The results of the 2011 census are published on our Scottish Census website. Census records from other countries Please go to our useful websites - Census page for links to census records from other countries. This is a photograph of the staff of the 1921 Census Bureau. James Craufurd Dunlop, General Secretary, is sitting in the middle of the front row. There are separate pages for each census that provide information on questions asked, examples and links to census street indexes and other search room guides. Thus, while the information on the 1911 Census for England and Wales was made available in early January 2009, the Registrar General for Scotland only released the information on the 1911 Census of Scotland just after the date of the 2011 Census (27 March 2011), by which time the 100-year closing period was over. This guide covers: Open Census Records (1841-1911) Open Census Records are transcription books prepared by enumerators after the census From the hours of the households of the chief of each home, institution and vessel, they are available as indexed digital images on our Scotlandspeople website and Ena, the Scotlandspeople Center and local centers of family history. Preliminary pages that include a detailed description of the Enumeration District can be selected by selecting the search option. The returns gave a population of 4,759,445 inhabitants, that is, 2,307,603 men and 2,451,842 women, which represents an increase of 287,342 people with respect to 1901. The Scottish Census is the responsibility of the Secretary General of Scotland since 1861. We will publish indexed images of the 1921 Screen census at www.scotlandspeople.gov.uk and the Scotlandspeople Center in the second half of 2022. However, to see the detail costs 6 credit if you live in Scotland, you can get crops at a reduced price from your local library. Click on the image to see it at full size. The original schedules of households were destroyed. Click here for more details. The 1911 Scotland census was performed on the same date as for England and Wales, on Sunday night April. It is also available by visiting the Edinburgh Scotlandspeople Center. Unlike the previous censuses, there is no plan to put the books of the registration bypass in New Register House in Edinburgh. You can book a seat in the search room for 15 £ by day and you can see as many records as you want at no additional charge, although there is a fee for printing or saving a historical record in your account. Note that, unlike England and Wales, individual homes for the 1911 Scottish census have been destroyed so it is not possible to see them. You can register at the site for free and you can search the index without charge and see details of GENERO, AGE AND AREA. Download it for free.
